

Top 5 Spots to Honeymoon in Thailand

Few travel decisions are as important as choosing the country you head to for your honeymoon. After all, honeymoons are once in a lifetime experiences and they should be special.

Even though you may have already decided to spend your post-nuptial getaway in a specific country, there will always be many destinations from which to choose. For example, Thailand offers you an abundance of beach resorts and quaint countryside towns, which can get quite confusing when it's time to pick a location – especially if it's your first trip to the Land of Smiles.

With that in mind, the following top 5 spots in Thailand can make your dream come true. From a relaxing vacation to an adventure-filled escapade, a honeymoon in Thailand can end your wedding ceremony on a good note and usher in your new life as a married couple in a memorable way.

Koh Kood

If you want to spend your honeymoon in a quiet and tranquil beach destination, you can escape the crowds and have a romantic experience at Koh Kood (also known as Ko Kut). This island has many secluded beaches where coconut palms outnumber buildings. It's an unspoiled destination offering guests a plethora of natural beauty to explore.

You can go for a swim in the shimmering and warm waters at Away Ko Kood resort or snorkel and scuba dive in one of the many beaches that surround the island.

Kayaking and jungle trekking are additional fun things that couples can try as well. The island's warm hospitality doesn't disappoint as newlyweds get to stay in luxurious beach bungalow villas that provide great views of the sea.

Ko Samui

Nestled in the Gulf of Thailand, Ko Samui is one of the most popular honeymoon destinations in Thailand. Although this island may be highly commercialized, it still has plenty of appeal. A myriad of luxury resorts and villas will provide you with the perfect escape from the hustle and bustle of city-living.

The Centara Villas, for instance, is a great resort for married couples to visit. Both you and your partner will be pampered at this beachfront resort with luxurious massages, body treatments and much more. At the end of the day, you'll get to watch the sunset and share many memorable moments together.

There are many quiet beaches to spend a romantic hideaway in Ko Samui, with the best picks being Mae Nam, Bophut, and Bang Rak.

Railay

Railay is located on the Andaman Coast and is easily accessible from Ko Phi Phi, Ao Nag, Phuket, and Krabi. This peninsula is home to Phra Nang, one of the most picturesque beaches in the world.

There are plenty of romantic things to do at this destination such as sunbathing, sightseeing, and even rock climbing. Railay allows you to make your honeymoon as relaxing or adventurous as you'd like.

For those who prefer to stay in a five star luxury resort, Rayavedee would be a great choice.

Phuket

Phuket is the largest island in Thailand. It's a destination of spectacular natural beauty and great diversity. One of the main reasons couples visit this island is because of the beautiful beaches it offers. Despite the fact that most of Phuket beaches have been developed and some even ruined by pollution, you can still find a few offbeat beaches that are worth the trip. Most of the unspoiled beaches are located in Southeastern Phuket, and they include Cape Panwa, Ya Nui, Rawai, and Nai Han.

Couples can set sail on a romantic cruise in their own private yacht from Chalong Bay, where boat tour operators abound. Alternatively, you can spend a day with your significant other in Phang Nga Bay, which is famous for its beautiful caves, limestone cliffs, mangroves, fishing villages, and the famous James Bond Island.

There are endless resorts that provide romantic holiday packages for two, but if you want to experience pure bliss with your spouse, you won't regret choosing Indigo Pearls.

Chang Mai

Although most people may think that the best honeymoon destinations in Thailand are just the beaches, there are romantic cities in this Asian nation as well. For example, Chang Mai serves as the perfect destination for couples who simply dislike beaches. The city has a more laidback cosmopolitan vibe and it's less polluted and crowded than what you'll find in Bangkok.

A honeymoon in Chang Mai offers you so many activities to indulge in. You can spend the day strolling through ancient temples, visiting markets, or learning how to cook authentic Thai cuisine. And if you need a break from the cityscape, you can explore nature in Chang Mai's countryside with your soul mate by riding an elephant in the wild, rafting through rivers, swimming under waterfalls, or jungle trekking on the Trek Mountains in Doi Suthep National Park.

If luxury is what you're looking for, you can get just that by staying at the Mandarin Oriental Dhara Dhevi resort. But do keep in mind that Chang Mai has plenty of other four and five star hotels that offer great honeymoon packages for couples too.

This list is by no means complete since Thailand has so many amazing destinations that each offer their own take of what makes an unforgettable honeymoon experience.

However, the suggestions above will provide a starting point of research for couples looking to start their “happily ever after” in a romantic and fun way.